I just got XM a few days ago, and the traffic and weather helps greatly. It's akin to the large VHF networks in Alaska that also have a dedicated weather station for each region.

It does not make sense to limit local content via satellite radio when I'm able to receive local content via satellite TV. Please turn a deaf ear to local radio stations that would rather keep competitors with fresh ideas down instead of bettering their own content. Welcome them back when they begin to innovate again through the use of HD radio, but not at the cost of a voice for satellite radio.

Thanks.
